A Baseball Noir

Starring: Phil Donlon, Ernie Hudson, Geoffrey Lewis (his final film), Lindsey Haun, David Yow, Scarlett Fay, Eddie Jemison, Johnny Dowers, Jason James Richter, Camilla Cleese

"This is a film that will stay with you forever. Yes, it is a movie about baseball, but in the same glorious way that "The Grapes of Wrath" is a film about farming or "Rain Man" a movie about gambling. Gritty and honest, it is filled with great performances that show us real human beings, flawed but compelling. It is, to borrow a phrase, a home run." -Rick Kogan, Chicago Tribune

SYNOPSIS

Phil (Phil Donlon) is a man obsessed with the game of baseball: the sounds of it, the smells of it, the feel of the bat on the ball, and the men who have made the game great. It's been in his blood since the day he was born to Len Harding (Geoff Lewis), a legend in the game. Baseball is his life. At least it used to be. At 33, Phil is still trying to make it to the big leagues and escape the shadow of his famous and domineering father. But his marriage is falling apart, he's broke and he's just been released by the last team he thought could give him a shot at "the bigs." High and Outside is a slow burn character study that doubles as a wild and dark ride through the gritty streets of LA's San Fernando Valley.

Geoffrey Lewis

Lewis worked frequently with actor-director Clint Eastwood in several films including Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, Pink Cadillac, Any Which Way You Can, Bronco Billy, Every Which Way but Loose, Thunderbolt and Lightfoot and High Plains Drifter. His filmography includes television shows such as Law & Order: Criminal Intent, In the Heat of the Night, and My Name is Earl, as well as films such as Down in the Valley, The Butcher, Maverick, and When Every Day Was the Fourth of July. In 1979, he appeared in Salem's Lot. High and Outside was Geoffrey's final film.

Ernie Hudson

Hudson, veteran film actor and current star on the FOX series APB, gained fame playing Winston Zeddemore, who enlists with the Ghostbusters in the 1984 feature film of the same name, and its 1989 sequel. Hudson is also known for his character Warden Leo Glynn on HBO's series Oz, and for his role as Harry McDonald, the FBI superior of Sandra Bullock's character in the feature film Miss Congeniality. Among countless other TV and film roles, Hudson was recently cast in a recurring role as Jacob, an organic farmer who is the romantic interest for Frankie Bergstein (Lily Tomlin) in the series Grace and Frankie.

Lindsey Haun

HIGH & OUTSIDE

David Yow

Yow, a hot up-and-comer, currently appears (alongside Elijah Wood, Jane Levy and Melanie Lynskey) in the supporting role of Marshal in Macon Blair's SUNDANCE Grand Jury winning film I Don't Feel at Home in this World. His deceptive and dark persona (or as David Lynch said, that 'Great Face') has also landed him film roles that are sick and twisted as a murderous fiend (Bleed, Al's Beef, All Roads Lead), as an innocuous nurse (High & Outside), as a retired jockey (Sunday Punch), and in parts that are as creepy as they are weird (Southbound, Entertainment). Yow is known across the globe as the fiercely passionate lead singer for his band The Jesus Lizard.
